2021 Grant of $6,535
Arizona Trout in the Classroom (TIC) Program
School Year July 2021 - June 2022

The 2021 - 2022 program began with various challenges continuing due to COVID-19 which arrived in March 2019 and changed daily lives not only for students, teachers and schools but the world. The pandemic had a negative impact during the final months of the program in March - May, 2020.

The restart of the program for the 2021 - 2022 (and 2022 – 2023) school year has been a challenge, due to various production and supply chain issues, to obtain some needed chemicals, equipment, and supplies and the exiting and teachers leaving the profession and retiring resulting with no immediate backfill to continue the program.

The Arizona Council of Trout Unlimited and chapters continue to have a ready supply of volunteers to contribute time, contributions and expenses for travel, monitoring and coordination of the various activities with the 40 schools and AZGFD. Normal delivery and set-up time for new schools was approximately 8 hours per tank and annual hours per volunteer supporting a school teacher ranged from 35 - 80 hours depending upon the experience of the teacher and the additional time spent by volunteers for classroom lectures, class projects and potential field trips.

Acknowledgement of Arizona Sportsmen For Wildlife Conservation (AZSFWC) and the Conservation License Plate Program was recognized throughout the past several years on chapter websites, at TIC training sessions, slide presentations, announcements, in AZTU Council and chapter newsletters and meetings, in classroom literature and other opportunities. An AZSFWC decal was provided to each school to be displayed on the classroom aquarium. Recognition of supporters has also been provided to schools, parents, the educational community and communities throughout Arizona. Examples of recognition are attached.

Additional information on the Arizona Trout-In-the-Classroom (TIC) program can be found at <http://www.aztic.org>, www.facebook.com/aztroutintheclassroom and www.az-tu.org.

A 3.5-minute video acknowledges and mentions the support and funding by AZSFWC and can be seen at www.aztic.org.

The Arizona Council and four Arizona chapters thank the AZSFWC for its continued support of this program.

Doyle, as shown below, the rental of unit #556 for TIC expires tomorrow (1/20/2022). I have talked with Steve and Storage Solutions to extend the rental period for two (2) additional months (until 3/20/2022). Briefly, the additional storage is needed due to the delivery delays of tanks and stands to schools because of COVID restrictions.

In talking with the owner of Storage Solutions and their office they will extend the lease using the AZTU credit card you have on file for both units (#552 & #556). To ensure they and we agree would you please call them at 480-945-0343 to concur your authorization.

Thanks.

HANDS-ON CONSERVATION

It is said that hands-on experience is the perfect teaching companion to classroom discussion and reading. The Trout In the Classroom program is a great example of this.

Started in 2006, the program inspires aquatic and water conservation knowledge in schoolchildren across Arizona.

Partners in the Arizona program include the Arizona Game and Fish Department, the Council and Chapters of Trout Unlimited, and many hunting and fishing clubs across the state. Partial funding is provided by grants from the sales of Arizona Sportsmen for Wildlife Conservation's Conserving Wildlife specialty license plates.

One of the first programs of its kind in Arizona, Trout In the Classroom provides knowledge to young people (grades four through 12) as they raise trout from eggs to fingerling-size fish in their classrooms. Teachers and students are trained to feed the fish and monitor tank water quality.

"We equip teachers with the information they need to inspire students to learn and research any questions they have about fish biology," says Trout Unlimited Arizona Council Chair Steve Reiter. "We know there are less young people getting outdoors and so we bring the experience to them."

"In the program, students use STREAM [science, technology, recreation, engineering, art and math] approaches, learn about habitats and water resources and gain a valuable conservation perspective," says Jim Walker, chair of the Arizona Trout In the Classroom program.

In 2014, AZGFD's Aquatic Branch Chief Chris Cantrell and Statewide Hatchery Program Manager Geoffrey Rabinovich met with Walker and the Trout Unlimited team to discuss expanding the program from three classrooms into additional schools. The next year, Rabinovich was approached by Cantrell to be the new AZGFD liaison for the program. "I wanted to help provide the tools to facilitate student learning of trout culture, fish biology, conservation and sportfishing," Rabinovich says.

Since the 2014 meeting, the team has increased participation to 37 classrooms as of last year. The long-term goal is to involve 100 schools statewide.

Department hatchery program staff Bryce Sisson, Trevor Nelson, David Fox, Kyle Tulisak, Wayne Jones and Cindy Dunn are also instrumental in helping coordinate the program.

The Gila Trout Chapter in Payson has been involved with Trout In the Classroom for 10 years. "We are always anxious to educate children about the ecosystem of Arizona streams and lakes," says Dorothy Howell, coordinator of the program and one of the chapter leaders. Howell and her volunteers are the primary contacts with teachers, helping them with equipment and advice about how to maintain healthy trout.

"The students are more involved in their learning because they are active with it, making it a more meaningful experience for both teacher and students," says Kim Hansen, a sixth-grade teacher at Ruth Fisher Middle School in Tonopah.

Each year, the program begins with a teacher workshop, an educational opportunity that still continues today. This year's workshop will be held online and in one-on-one pairings to meet CDC Covid-19 standards.

With the help of volunteers, Trout Unlimited chapters deliver and assemble 55-gallon fish tanks, a chiller to maintain water temperature and all the supplies and chemicals needed to help the eggs hatch and grow into fingerling-sized trout in each classroom. With an extensive statewide volunteer delivery process to the schools, AZGFD provides the trout eggs and fish food for the program.

"Trout propagated by the Arizona Game and Fish Department are a resource provided for all licensed anglers," Cantrell says. "The Trout In the Classroom partnership with Trout Unlimited and participating Arizona schools provides the department an additional opportunity to broaden our reach into the diversity of Arizona."

When each program ends in May, teachers report their findings to Trout Unlimited. To develop and practice their public-speaking skills, students present program reports to other classes, school officials, local service clubs and nonprofit organizations.

The fish are donated to conservation centers to nourish captive wildlife recovering from illness or injury. In the future, with disease precautions in place, it may be feasible to stock the fingerlings in rivers and streams.

Trout In the Classroom partners also hope the program encourages young people to venture outdoors to further explore nature with their friends and family and consider a career involving conservation.

Connecting Students To Their Watersheds

What is Trout in the Classroom?

Trout in the Classroom (TIC) is a program that offers students a chance to raise trout in a classroom setting. The environmental education program provides students in grades 4 - 12 hands-on experience in:

- raising trout from eggs to fry
- monitoring tank water quality
- engaging in stream habitat studies
- learning to appreciate water resources
- beginning to foster a conservation ethic
- growing an understanding of ecosystems

During the school year, each teacher can tailor the program to fit their needs. Each program is unique and has interdisciplinary applications for STREAM (Science, Technology, Recreation, Engineering, Art and Math) which can support mandated education requirements.

TIC is for Most Grade Levels

Any teacher in any classroom can make TIC relevant to his or her classroom curriculum. In the early grades, the focus can be on caring, growth, understanding life cycles and the seasons. A high school program might explore water chemistry, the nitrogen cycle, natural resource management, watershed geology and ecology.

Why Participate in TIC?

Because TIC brings nature into the classroom, it allows students to develop a personal bond with the natural world and a sense of conservation ethics that are at the core of Trout Unlimited's mission (www.tu.org). Youth and young anglers better understand the value of their local waters and fisheries when they have seen the trout life cycle up close and personal in this way.

TIC Across the Country

TIC volunteers, teachers and students across the U. S. share resources and learn from one another. For this reason, Trout Unlimited staff and volunteers in 35 states participate in more than 5,000 classroom programs in the United States. You can explore www.troutintheclassroom.org to learn more.

TIC in Arizona

The Arizona TIC Program has rapidly increased over the past several years. In 2014 there were 3 schools and will increase to 40 for the 2021 - 2022 school year.

This dramatic expansion has been due to the cooperation of Trout Unlimited, Arizona Game and Fish Department and large grants provided from the Arizona Sportsmen for Wildlife Conservation (AZSFWC) license plate program (<https://azsfwc.org/grant-information>).

As a result of this year's supporting grants, student involvement and experiences for the 40 schools will again exceed 4,500 students with an additional 10,000 people connecting with the program through visits by parents, relatives, school administrators and classroom guests.

Additional information about the Arizona TIC Program and information on how to volunteer is available at www.aztic.org.

For information on applying to the program please send an email to info@aztic.org.
